

First-trimester uterine rupture from a placenta percreta

曾啓瑞

Liang HS;Jeng CJ;Sheen TC;Lee FK;Yang YC;Tzeng

CR

摘要

Abstract

BACKGROUND: Cesarean scar pregnancy complicated by placenta percreta and uterine rupture is an uncommon gynecologic emergency. CASE: A woman presenting with abdominal pain and shock was found to have a cesarean scar pregnancy complicated by placenta percreta and uterine rupture.

CONCLUSION: Implantation within a cesarean scar may cause placenta percreta, leading to uterine rupture in the first trimester and mimicking other gynecologic emergencies.