Avoidance of environmental tobacco smoke among pregnant Taiwanese women: Their knowledge;self-efficacy;and behavior.

陳靜敏
Chen CM;Lee PH;Chou YH;Kuo SF;Hsu YH

摘要

Abstract

The issue of active and passive cigarette smoking among pregnant women at home has become a major source of debate. The purpose of this study was to explore the knowledge of, self-efficacy with, and behavior toward avoiding environmental tobacco smoke and related factors among pregnant women in Taiwan.